It seems you have no true understanding of how mental health provision actually works or you would understand.

Even low doses significantly impair the judgment and coordination required to drive a car safely, increasing the likelihood that the driver will be involved in an accident.

Your write up is a good example of it.