so far the only men who regularly freeze their sperm are those who face testicular cancer or other cancer treatments that might affect their sperm count or viability

but the truth is that most of these products contain certain products that may cause minor to severe side effects in some cases